In Memory of

Susan Lanctot

Joseph Beck

We, the Class of 1967, wish to pay tribute to two of our fellow classmates, Joseph Beck and Susan Lanctot. Their young lives ended during our high school years; yet we will always remember them.

Joseph was respected by all of us as a student and an individual of integrity. We remember the friendly word he had for everyone and his willingness to help others. His presence has been missed by all.

Susan was admired by all who knew her as a person of rare courage. She always had a smile and a kind word for her classmates. She accepted her approaching death with a calmness that few of us can ever hope to experience. Spiritually, she contributed much to our class.

The memory of both of our former students will always be with us as we continue onward in life.

Dedication

Our lives have been greatly enriched during the four years which we have spent at Southbridge High School. This enrichment was made possible by the faculty members' time and ability which they so willingly shared with us. We are thankful to all of our teachers for their contributions to us, and especially grateful to our advisors, Mr. James Forkey and Mr. William Paul. To them we, the grateful Class of 1967, dedicate this yearbook, a symbol of our enrichment by them.

Mr. James Forkey

We cannot be just, unless we are kindhearted.

from IN MEMORIAM A. H. H.

We have but faith: we cannot know,
For knowledge is of things we see;
And yet we trust it comes from Thee,
A beam in darkness: let it grow.

Let knowledge grow from more to more,
But more of reverence in us dwell;
That mind and soul, according well,
May make one music as before. . . .

The members of the Student Council and their energetic advisor, Mr. John Conlon, combined their efforts and talents to hold candy sales, dances, and suppers—the proceeds of which brought our first foreign exchange student to S.H.S.

Katya deCastro has been with us since August, residing with Beth Palmerino. She will graduate with us as a member of the class of '67, sharing with us all the many activities which make up the uniqueness of being a mighty senior. Katya has taught us much about the life in Brazil; she has learned much from us in return. We will all miss Katya, but her warm smile and friendly nature will serve as a remembrance of S.H.S.'s first exchange student.

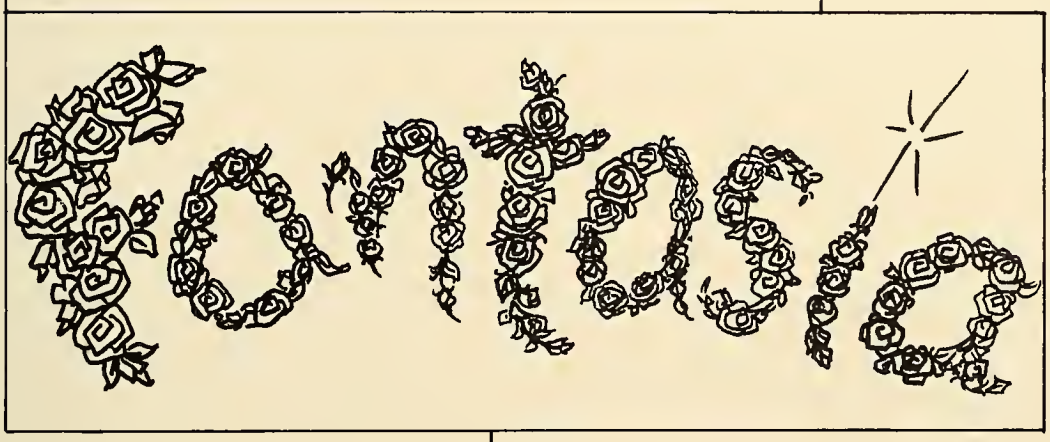
EVENTS



Fantasia

Junior Prom

Our Junior Prom is one of those occasions we will cherish forever in our scrapbook of S.H.S. memories. Dedicated to the class of '66, Fantasia will be remembered as a truly successful and beautiful social gathering.

Among the many hard workers who devoted their time and energy to prom preparations were Ken Szczypien, Paul Hapgood, Pete Cournoyer, Marcia Domijan, Stuart Sharp, and Anna Calcagni. Arches entwined with flowers and vines, picket fences, swimming swans, wide-eyed daisies, and the Gazebo were combined to present a spectacular event, very difficult to top.

Queen Carol Rutanen and members of her court—Jane Clarke, Prudence Allard, Diane Suprenant, and Carol Pontbriand—reigned over the Fantasia setting.

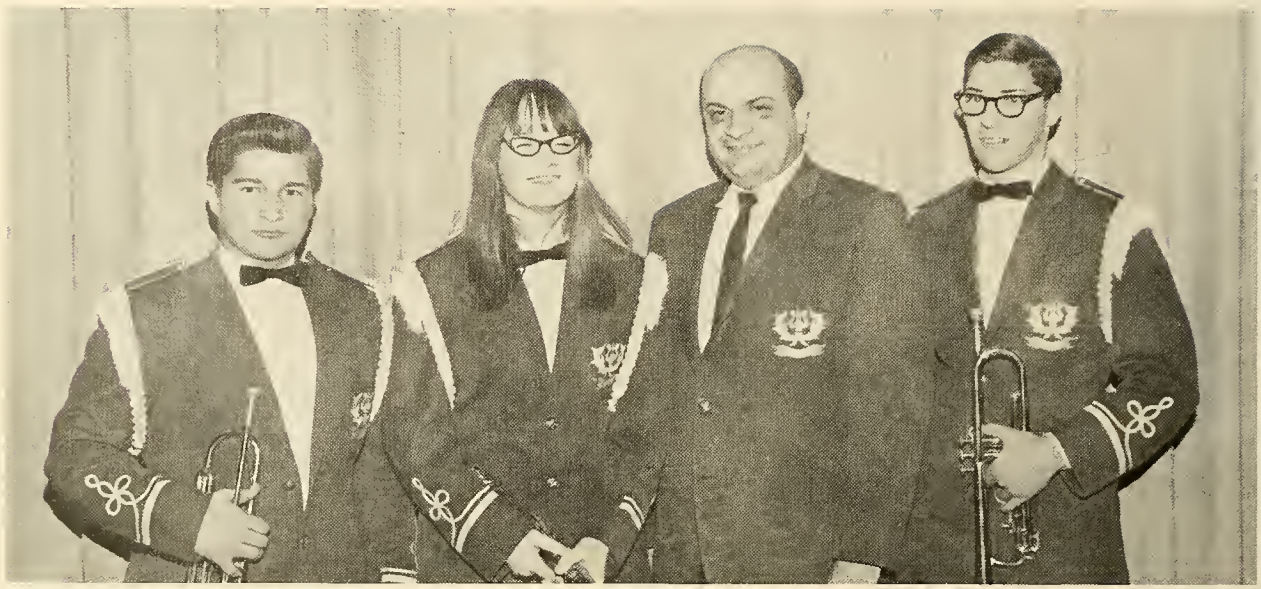
Freshman Reception

The senior class honored the class of '70 at its annual Freshman Reception in September. This gave the mighty seniors an opportunity to introduce the incoming class to the faculty. The Motions provided the entertainment for the event. All who attended enjoyed a fine evening.

Christmas Concert



Every year before the start of the Yuletide season, the Music Department, under the direction of Mr. Arnold Reppucci, can be seen busily preparing their annual concert. Gaiety and the spirit of Christmas prevailed over the audience as an introduction for the Holidays.

The Band, Troubadour Choir, Chorus, Santa Clauses, and soloists Janice Libera and Celeste Seremet all contributed to the success of the concert.

Distinguished Guest

Edward W. Brooke, present Senator from Massachusetts and former Attorney General, addressed the student body of S.H.S. on the invitation of the National Honor Society. He emphasized foreign affairs and the role of high school pupils in preparations for the future. He labeled education as the "key to the future." Senator Brooke was presented by Robert MacMaster, former President, and Richard Abrahamson, program chairman, of the Honor Society. Miss Persis Howe is advisor to the organization. We acknowledge all those who made this very rewarding assembly possible.

Senior Play

Our senior class presented Stalag 17 with an all-male cast on two successive nights in the school auditorium. The enthusiastic reception to our first and only play by the public made the endeavor a huge success.

Under the superb direction of Mr. James Forkey, our class advisor, the entire cast gave two splendid performances. Many long and hard hours went into the preparations for the play. It proved to be a rewarding and exciting experience for both the cast and the audience.

We, the class of 1967, solemnly declaring this to be our last will and testament, do hereby bequeath our most exceptional qualities, which have made each one of us an individual person.

To Mr. Beattie, our new school superintendent, the Class leaves memories of his first graduating Class in Southbridge.

To Mr. Desroches, we leave our sincere gratitude for all the many things he has done for us.

To Mr. Forkey, whom we will ever remember and thank, we leave an extra nine hours' sleep and the memory of the best Senior Class Play.

To Mr. Paul, also our class advisor, we leave our heart-felt thanks and the memory of the most beautiful Junior Prom ever presented.

To our homeroom teachers, Hail and Farewell.

BANG!! Pure destruction. The world is in holocaust. The year is 1977; no one is left. Yet, safely below the earth, the Class of 1967 and their families lie in a suspended state.

It all happens one fine day during the tenth-day class reunion which is being held in the new underground Southbridge City Auditorium, brainchild of architect Frank Roccisano. The group is witnessing a demonstration of new techniques to put life in a suspended state, developed by Stephen Lancey and Charles Szumilas. Suddenly, Mike Caplette, U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, receives an urgent message over his radio-wristwatch and falls to the floor in a faint. His assistant, Allan Guardiani, notifies the audience of the start of the Third World War. To avoid the destruction described over the Ambassador's wrist-radio, the entire class undergoes the Szumilas-Lancey treatment, administered by assistant biologist Joyce Polakowski and nurses Diana Vasil and Jan Desmarais. The entire class enters a sleep-like condition, which stops all bodily activities and preserves the bodies for twenty-five years.

Time passes to the year 2002. The class awakens to a uninhabited world, full of strange new plants and consistently warm climate. To face the task of rebuilding the world, leaders selected by elections are obtained. Supervising the elections are Robert Dupuis, Pete Battista, and Paul Bouvier. The class officers are unanimously elected to their old posts —Kenneth Szczypien as President, Pete Cournoyer as Vice-President. Among the appointments are Paul Hapgood, Secretary of the Treasury; and Marcia Langlois as Chief Accountant; Martin Gubb as Secretary of Economic Rebuilding; Paul Libuda as Chief Justice and Sue Bachand as Clerk of Courts; Stanley Burzycki as Field Marshall and Roland Dupuis as his assistant. Helen Bellos is appointed personal secretary to President Szczypien. Ruth Yanka is appointed official historian of the settlement of New Southbridge.

Religious needs of the community are cared for by Reverend Ronald Parent, whose golden tongue guides the congregation on Sundays. Linda Brown, after receiving a vision, founded the Convent of Sisters of Saint Nesbitt, assisted by Marlene Langevin and Theresa Zach.

A primary problem is rearranging the school system. Because of her kind nature, Linda Julian attracts all the children and places them in a special annex. The children, ranging from pre-school to fourth graders, are divided into their respective classes. Paulette Gregoire, discoverer of a new pre-school-age teaching method, embarks upon the tedious task of awakening young minds. Carolyn Swiatek and Sue LaRivere, co-authors of Teaching the Young Genius, have selected a genius group for the speed learning program. Linda Lavigne's sunny smile makes her an excellent choice for first graders. Second and third graders are taught by Gloria Lataille and Frances Gagne respectively. Dorothy Szydlik, author of Growing Up—How We Can Help, uses her unique talent for fourth graders.

The president, requesting a course in adult education, desires to continue cultural and educational advancement for the limited number of persons in New Southbridge. French is taught by Linda Langevin and Donna Mandeville, co-authors of French of the Ages. Katya de Castro, the first exchange student at Southbridge High School, teaches Spanish to enterprising students. Norman Vandal and Nancy Salvatore combine their talents to form an adult English class worthy of the 1967 members. Nuclear Age Math is instructed by Albie Anderson, while Myrna Anderson gives instruction in Advanced College Math. The sciences are attended to by William Klosek and Louis Trahan.

All pupils are compelled and interesed adults encouraged to enter the special fields. Marcia Domijan, the famed artist, gives all pupils instructions in the fine art of drawing. Helen Cadarette gives pupils excellent dance training. Special classes in physical education are given by Donna Benoit, karate expert. For those interested in mechanics, William O'Brien, discoverer of the nuclear-powered car, imparts his knowledge.

Our history teachers, Thomas Lapriore and Paul Yanka, are corroborating on the complete history of the world.

Daniel Bourdelais solves the problem of building the easy-to-build, sturdy home. An expert in metals, he has produced cheaply and easily a collapsible, compact, yet portable full-size ranch home. Roland Blanchette and Armand Jalbert, under the supervision of Ronald Bussiere, begin production of these folding homes. Afred Denno is placed in charge of the distribution, with Linda Winchester as his secretary. Inside the home, cabinet expert Richard Lorange performs decorating miracles with the help of Paul Gaucher.

Paul Bachand, Ken Rizner, and Steve Davis work diligently on replenishing our electrical supply. Jean Julian and Donald Mainville, after many hours deliberation, finish the construction of the intricate plumbing system. Without their help, water would be a serious problem.

Ray Fournier and Robert Couture plan the new road system. Their ideas run from superspeed highways to underground tunnels. James Hill, director of the building of this system, is assisted by Dave Tremblay and Robert Bertrand. The roads begin to curve their way into Southbridge life again.

The Department of Labor and Economy has formed a union. David Ceccarelli and Anna Calcagni, noted for their ability to find things, are elected to explore and find a building for the business department. To their surprise, they find the American Optical Company has been perfectly preserved. Little do they know that Thomas Brousseau has mixed laser-maser beams and developed a coating which will preserve it forever. Three days before that fateful night, Malcolm Utakis, Gene Cadarette, and Joe Gauthier covered the whole American Optical with this protective coating. Inside, all was safe and sound. Returning to the underground auditorium, David and Anna report their findings. The business department is being reconstructed.

Steve Champeau is elected business co-ordinator. Anne Belanger, the fastest shorthand taker, and Janice Leduc, the fastest typist, are his secretaries. Nancy Leduc and Diana Syriac have the privilege of being secretaries to Priscilla Gimas, head of business administration.

David Ford begins rearranging the prices of our food-stuffs with the help of Kenneth Ashton, grocery store owner. Under his supervision are Sue Lemoine and Sue Bousquet. Deborah Gray, economic analyst, is assisted by Monique and Linda Benoit.

The clothing department, under Donna Beaulieu, shocks the settlement with daring new designs by Alice Brousseau. Tom Brodeur, alos in this department, is the supervisor to Martha Prince and Sue Anderson.

Henry Benoit is business administrator for Household facilities; Jean Vilandre is indeed honored to place her skills under this office.

Robert Tarquinio, business co-ordinator of IBM machines, has for his secretaries Carol Zajac and Ruth Arsenault. The famed computer programmers, Donna Gravell, Cynthia Buchanan, Mike Gendreau, and Linda Webber give their skills to this department.

John Stevens begins the reconstruction of vending machines, assisted by Ann McDonald. Theresa Gauthier as typist and Elizabeth Sweet, first secretary, work under his supervision.

The old infirmary at the American Optical has been enlarged to accommodate the community's needs under Chief of Staff Thaddeus Lesniewski. Physician Gerry Mathieu is well known in the community for his hard work. Surgeon Charles Palmerino has for his assistants the able nurses, Linda DiMarco, Nancy Niejadlik, Roberta Pratt, and Elaine Burda. His operations would be impossible without the help of Paula Dubreuil, X-Ray technician.

Home first-aid courses are taught by Doctor William DiGregorio and his assistant Rosanne Tremblay. Dentist David Richard is assisted by dental hygienist Charliss Brousseau.

With the organization of a new town and business, people in the varied fields of athletics are planning a new gymnasium, ultramodern teaching techniques, and organized games in a variety of sports.

The new gymnasium, built and contracted by Randal Morse, athletic director, is located next to the underground auditorium. Bichop Nawrot, famed architect, is the construction contractor. John Anderson, because of his creative ideas of landscaping, is the ground's custodian.

When the building is finally completed, the physical education instructors will be at work in an accelerated physical fitness program. A typical day in the gym follows this schedule:

Beside the pool, Deanne Walstrom, WAA swimming champion, is giving lessons in new lifesaving methods. Patricia Polanik, professional gymnast, is seen at the far end of the women's gymnasium, teaching forward rolls on the balance beam.

In the men's gymnasium, Nelson Carpentier, head basketball coach, is drilling shooting and rebounding techniques, and boys' physical education teacher, William Cloutier, is demonstrating the proper form for a push-up.

Clifford Szczypien, assistant football coach, leads the team in calisthenics, while head coach John Lango organizes the plays for upcoming games.

At a nearby ski slope, John Giroux makes a perfect landing after jumping a distance of 133.5 feet. Rachel Robert, expert ski instructor, is on the no-ice slope teaching the snow plow.

Out in the street is Billis' Tea Room, where co-owners Nick and Steve Billis are the gourmet chefs, and Michelle Lapierre is the pastry expert. Her assistant is Rene Laporte, expert brownie-maker. Big eaters will have a gourmet's holiday sampling Greek Pastry accented by Chinese tea. The waitresses in the tea room, Norma Capistrand, Cheryl Horonzewic, and Betty Webber keep busy in the most popular eating place in town.

Down Lucky Avenue is the newly established beauty salon, Chez Ruby, owned by Ruby-Jean Ernest. She and her beauty operators Linda Maly and Paulette Boudreau are busily preparing the young ladies for the first dance to be held at the Social Club tonight. The dance is organized by Suzanne Asselin, director of the Club. Next door at the barber shop, Phillip Pettinelli keeps up with the latest haircuts for boys.

The various organizations which make up the Social Club include the Hot Rod Club and the Bridge Club. Theodore Ashton and James Ostrokolowicz, President and Vice-President respectively of the Hot Rod Club, are busy restoring cars all over the area.

Buddy Barth, chief reporter of the New News, is getting a story on the Bridge Club from officers Diane Jacques and Betty Ohop. This paper, the most popular publication in the settlement, is edited by Jane Kurposki, who has won a Pulitzer Prize for her novel before the War.

As correspondence grows in volume, a Post Office is set up under Postmaster Gregory Bachand. Barry Cooper is the town's mailman.

A museum is being established to bridge the gap between the world of the past and the present. Artist Stuart Sharp is painting a mural for the new museum of the day after the long sleep. Joyce Vincelette, interior designer, is planning the decor. The guides' uniforms are being designed by Beth Palmerino. Louis Postemski, the famed detective, has been hired to guard Paul Besse's art exhibition.

Sarah Paquette will be the curator of the paper-making display and Gerry Paquin will present authoritative talks on the history of cars together with Edward Iozzo. Christine Metivier, world renown archaeologist, will be heading up the pre-war department.

The museum is planning to have an extensive botany department. Those who will be associated with the department are: Carolyn Mills, Thaddeus Mroczkowski, David Savage, Roger Smeltzer, and Clyde Thompson.

The exhibitions "Vehicles of Space Travel" are already being assembled. As we view the model of Andre Lazure's space runabout, it is recalled that Andy and three other members of the Class of '67 will soon be returning from a twenty-five year long trip from the Moon. Bernard Hudon, David O'Brien, and Nicholas Zotos had gone to the Moon to establish an American Optical branch plant.

The business department's computer is consulted and the news spreads that the group is due back today. Hurriedly, the museum prepares for their welcome.

The rocket is suddenly sighted! Fireworks begin to sound proclaiming the class's joy at the approaching reunion with their long absent classmates. David Boucher, world famous conductor, strikes up the band as the space travelers descend the rocket. Also waiting nearby are Janice Libera, soloist, and the comic team of Michael Libuda, Wayne Lusignan, and Kenneth Menard. These classmates will provide the entertainment at the evening's festivities.

And so, the Class of 1967 moves confidently into the future, contributing the varied talents of its members to the difficult task of creating a better world.
